Personnel Opinions

"What is the proper role of the departmental personnel officer? Should he be the representative of the central personnel agency in the operating department, or should he represent the operating department before the central personnel agency? Are there occasions when he might have to play both roles?" Comments by: Carl B. Barnes, Laverne Rezabek, C. C. Jorgensen, and John Farrell, 107-110

"What responsibility does the employer have to (a) prepare employees for the retirement years and (b) look after their welfare after they have retired? What should the elements of each kind of program be?" Comments by: Richard A. Rosenberry, Tom D. Womble, Joseph W. Curtin, and Anthony P. Romano, 252-257

"What steps can be taken to maintain the internal consistency of classification and pay plans in a collective bargaining situation?" Comments by: Norman Schwab, Robert D. Krause, Ashton Tyler, and Robert W. Galloway, 181-185

"When a governmental agency undertakes to be an employer in a program to hire hard-core unemployed and similarly disadvantaged persons, what modifications, if any, have to be made in traditional personnel and civil service practices?" Comments by: Charles A. Pounian, Solomon Hoberman, and Nicholas J. Ogano-vic, 49-52

WORKSHOP IN EXAMINING TECHNIQUES

This is the same course that we have conducted for years for many individual clients' staffs, but now we are making it available to all examiners.

The course covers the principles and techniques of written testing. The emphasis is on learning by doing. Each student will prepare a test plan, will actually write many multiple-choice questions, using standard reference materials, will actually review and edit many questions and will compile a test from items taken from existing tests.

The course is appropriate for examiners, both from agencies which write much new material and agencies which compile most tests by selecting the best questions from other sources.

The instructors are Forbes E. McCann, Donald Morrison, Personnel Director, the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Chicago, and William Howeth, Principal Associate, McCann Associates.

To permit each student full opportunity for participation, registration is limited to 30 persons. The registration fee is $150 per person. The 40 hour course will be held in Philadelphia, September 14th to 19th, 1969. Write for the syllabus and further information.
